Stan Swami Memorial Lecture on World Human Rights Day

Respected Faculty Members,

“But we will sing in chorus. A caged bird can still sing” Stanislaus Lourduwamy, SJ

Stan Swamy was emblematic of what democracy means to those of us who fight for it every day and envision a just world. Stan Swamy was special, not only because of his life long struggle for India's most disadvantage communities-The Dalits and Adivasis- but because of the love and empathy that drove his struggle. He fought until the very end for the rights of the people- their communities their land, their rivers and foremost, their freedom of thought.

In the series of Stan Swami Memorial Lecture on World Human Rights Day, Department of Political Science join hands with AICUF to organise an event ‘Human Rights of Tribes: Development, Displacement and Rehabilitation’.

Stan Swamy memorial lecture is organised to pay tribute to the indomitable soul, not because he died for the Marginalised, but because he lived for them.
