ILMS, or Integrated Library Management Software, refers to a comprehensive software system designed to automate and streamline various library operations and services.

In the context provided, the library is fully automated using KOHA, which is an open-source ILMS widely used by libraries worldwide.

The version mentioned, 23.05.04, indicates the specific version of the KOHA software being utilized.

Cataloging and Metadata Management: ILMS allows librarians to create and manage bibliographic records, including information about books, journals, multimedia, and other library materials. It supports various metadata standards for organizing and describing library resources.

Acquisition and Collection Management: Librarians can use ILMS to manage the acquisition process, including ordering, receiving, and cataloging new materials. It also helps in maintaining the library collection by tracking items, identifying duplicates, and managing withdrawals.

Circulation and Patron Management: ILMS facilitates the circulation of library materials by automating tasks such as check-in, check-out, renewals, and holds/reservations. It also maintains patron records, including borrower information, loan history, and fine management.

OPAC (Online Public Access Catalog): ILMS provides patrons with access to the library's catalog through an online interface, allowing them to search for resources, place holds, view account information, and access digital content remotely.

RFID Integration: Integration with RFID (Radio Frequency Identification) technology enhances the efficiency and security of library operations. RFID tags embedded in library materials enable automated check-in/check-out, inventory management, and security systems.

Reporting and Analytics: ILMS generates reports and analytics to help librarians assess library usage, collection trends, circulation statistics, and other performance metrics. This data aids in decision-making and strategic planning.

Interlibrary Loan (ILL) Management: ILMS facilitates resource sharing among libraries by automating the interlibrary loan process, including requesting, borrowing, and lending materials from other libraries.

Digital Resource Management: Some ILMS platforms offer features for managing digital collections, including e-books, e-journals, databases, and multimedia resources. This includes access control, authentication, and usage tracking.

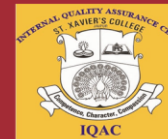

Overall, ILMS like KOHA offers libraries a centralized platform to efficiently manage their resources, improve patron services, and adapt to evolving technological trends in the library field. The integration with RFID technology further enhances the automation, security, and convenience of library operations.
