

Jatropha

Jatropha integerrima

Order:
Malpighiales

Family:
Euphorbiaceae

Genus:
Jatropha

Species:
Jatropha integerrima

DESCRIPTION

- Peregrina is an evergreen shrub or small tree, with glossy leaves and clusters of stars shaped red, pink or vermilion flowers.
- The plant has a rounded or narrow domed form and grows up to 15 ft tall with a spread of about 10 ft.
- All parts of this plant are toxic if ingested. Milky sap may cause skin irritation and rashes from contact.
- Seeds are toxic. Smoke from burning plant is toxic. Peregrina is native to Cuba, and cultivated worldwide.