DESCRIPTION

- Millettia pinnata is a legume tree that grows to about 15–25 m (50–80 ft) in height with a large canopy that spreads equally wide.
- It is native to eastern and tropical Asia, Australia, and the Pacific Island.
- It is often known by the synonym Pongamia pinnata. Its common names include Indian beech and Pongameoiltree
- A thick brownish oil can be extracted from the large seeds, and is used industrially and in medicine, notably for the treatment of rheumatism.
